U.S. To File New Barnett Charge Soon

Filing Of Papers Due In Criminal Contempt Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department said Friday its apparently unprecedented criminal contempt-of-court case against Mississippi Gov. Ross B. Barnett will be started soon.

RESEARCH LOW

The 5th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals directed the department Thursday to bring criminal contempt charges against Barnett and Lt. Gov. Paul B. Johnson Jr. in connection with the university's racial troubles.

Two persons were killed and hundreds, including more than 100 U. S. marshals, were injured on the university campus at Oxford, Miss., in the Sept. 30 rioting over the admission of James H. Meredith, a Negro, as a student.

Barnett and Johnson already have been found in civil contempt by the court of appeals for their role of blocking Meredith's court-ordered admission.

Guthman, saying he believed federal criminal contempt charges against a governor were unprecedented, indicated department lawyers are busy researching the law in preparation for the proceedings against Barnett.

He said details of the procedure — such as whether the case will be decided by a jury or one or more judges — will be worked out by attorneys and the court.

Criminal proceedings, government lawyers explained, are designed to punish a defendant for court defiance.

Civil contempt proceedings, they said, are designed to assure full compliance with a court order.

During the still pending civil contempt case, the department asked the court to fine Barnett $10,000 a day until he complies with the court's order that he refrain from interfering with Meredith's attempts to study at the university and that he maintain law and order at the university.

Lawyers for Barnett contended he had purged himself of the court's earlier finding that he had been in contempt. The Justice Department argued that he had not and, therefore, should be penalized.

The department suggested that the court appoint a master to sift the evidence in the case and determine the facts about Barnett's actions to comply or failure to comply with the order.

Government lawyers said this or a substitute procedure presumably still will be necessary to determine the facts in connection with the criminal contempt charges.

Anniversary Celebration To End Today

The 157th anniversary celebration of the founding of Monroe ends here today.

Officials of the Greater Monroe Downtown Association, sponsor of the event, Friday called the special promotion "highly successful." The celebration got underway Thursday.

Scheduled today is a free "baby sitting party" at the Paramount Theater, with the Kiddie Show getting underway at 9:30 a.m.

Mothers have been invited to let their children attend the program while the parents shop for bargains offered downtown.

Store employees will continue wearing their old-time costumes today, which has been a colorful feature of the event. And the special bargains being offered by 52 participating downtown merchants also will continue today.

Gigantic Saturn Perfect In Test

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The great Saturn rocket scored its third straight test flight success Friday and the United States mounted another rung on the ladder to the moon.

With its massive eight-engine power plant fully fueled for the first time, the 162-foot, 550-ton monster sent a thunderclap rolling across the Cape as it soared on a flight of four minutes and 55 seconds.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration reported that preliminary study of data indicated the Saturn had performed perfectly.

It was the longest flight yet for the rocket which in later development will start American space men on the way to the moon.

As on the first two tests, both successful, only the first stage was ignited in the world's largest known rocket. The vehicle generated a thrust of 1.3 million pounds, equal to 30 million horsepower.

The flight ended abruptly as planned at an altitude of 104 miles when a radio signal from the ground exploded charges that ripped the rocket to shreds.

The deliberate detonation speeded 23,000 gallons of ballast water—92 tons—into the icy ionosphere and a massive cloud of ice particles blossomed like a parachute, then dissipated within seconds. The huge white mass, several miles across, was clearly visible to observers at Cape Canaveral.

The man-made ice cloud was strictly frosting on the cake. The water was aboard to simulate the weight of upper stages to be flown on future Saturns.

HELICOPTER TRAGEDY

British Peer Lost At Sea In Ditching

LONDON (AP)—Lord Windlesham, a Grenadier Guards brigadier and head of the Irish branch of the Hennessy cognac family, was lost at sea Friday in the ditching of a military helicopter.

He and another member of Parliament, Laborite John Cronin, had been aboard for three days. A lifeboat from the St. David's Head coast guard station, sweeping the sea with a searchlight, kept up the search for the missing peer in darkness.

So did at least four British frigates as well as helicopters from the Hermes and other aircraft carriers in the vicinity.

Helicopters from the Hermes were on hand at the scene of the mishap within 20 minutes of the ditching.

FBI Arrests Fugitive In Murder Case

Climaxes Search In 13 States For Kidnaper-Slayer

SOPERTON, Ga. (AP)—A tall, 31-year-old handyman wanted in the slaying of a Westport, Conn., social leader and the abduction and rape of her 14-year-old daughter was arrested Friday in this east-central Georgia city.

The FBI said Harlis Miller, a native of Valdosta, Ga., and his common-law wife, Rosalee Miller, 21, were captured by FBI agents, Sheriff Joe C. Mullis and Georgia Bureau of Investigation agent Henry Walden.

SHOCKING TRAGEDY

The arrest of the two climaxed a 13-state hunt and four days of careful checking of every clue having any connection with the death of Isabel Sillan, a tragedy that shocked the fashionable Fairfield County, Conn., community.

The FBI learned the names of Miller's relatives in the course of the probe and kept a close watch on them. Miller's mother, Mary Miller, lives in Soperton.

The sheriff said the 6-foot-3 Negro was discovered hiding in the back of a pickup truck at his mother's home in the middle of town. He offered no resistance to officers who surrounded the truck in the backyard.

Joe D. Jamieson, Savannah, Ga., FBI agent, said Miller was charged with unlawful flight to avoid prosecution for murder, kidnapping and rape and the woman with unlawful flight to avoid prosecution for kidnapping.

U.S. Discloses Delay In 2-Man Gemini Project

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A three to four-month delay in the two-man Gemini astronaut program was disclosed Friday night by Robert R. Gilruth, director of the U. S. space agency's Manned Space Flight Center.

"The first unmanned capsule launch has slipped from the third quarter to the fourth quarter of 1963," Gilruth told a news conference at the American Rocket Society convention.

"There is virtually no possibility of a manned flight before 1964," he said.

Gilruth said the slippage was not due to lack of funds, "but because of the time it takes to do this very complicated job. We might even have further slips."

He declined to pinpoint any specific area of technical problems contributing to the delay.

Asked about reports that the Air Force might include money for the Gemini program in its next budget request, Gilruth said "We would be very happy to have the Air Force make whatever use they can of the Gemini program. We would welcome their participation."

But, he added, "I don't believe any additional money could affect the three to four-month delay."

FLIGHTS TO CONTINUE

Castro's Threat Sharpens Crisis

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Cuban crisis sharpened Friday with the Soviet Union defending Fidel Castro's threat to shoot down U.S. planes and the United States declaring flights over Cuba would continue with all protection necessary.

Soviet Delegate Valerian A. Zorin said the Cuban prime minister's protest against the U.S. reconnaissance flights "is perfectly legitimate" and that attempts to violate Cuban sovereignty "cannot but provoke universal condemnation."

He termed the flights unlawful and said the U.S. decision to continue them caused "deep concern for the peace of the world."

U.S. REPLIES
Zorin spoke in the U.N. General Assembly's main Political Committee, where a Cuban representative had accused Castro's warning to shoot down planes was already being put into effect.

But U.S. Delegate Arthur Dean told the committee that Castro's threat carries no weight with the United States.

Castro's verbal blasts failed to blunt U.S. determination to continue air surveillance over Cuba pending agreement on adequate verification of removal of all offensive weapons.

U.S. officials said the flights would continue with U.S. planes taking whatever steps may be necessary to meet hostile action from Cuba.

In Washington, President Kennedy called in his top military and diplomatic advisers for consultation.

The State Department declared that Castro had rejected all efforts to obtain adequate verification of a secret arms buildup in Cuba. Therefore, it added, the United States and other members of the Organization of American States are compelled to take whatever steps are necessary to guard against threats to their peace and security.

2 Major Battles Reported Raging In Border Areas

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Both India and Communist China announced two major battles at each end of the disputed McMahon line in India's North East Frontier Agency area Friday and both said fierce battles still raged.

An Indian defense ministry spokesman said the Chinese launched a massive assault near Walong at the extreme eastern end of the frontier near the border of Burma. He said "a fierce battle is raging."

The Communist New China news agency said Indian troops attacked in the Se La Pass area south of Tawang near the borders of India, Bhutan and Tibet under heavy artillery fire. It reported the Chinese were "compelled to strike back resolutely in self-defense. Fierce fighting is still in progress." This area is about 500 miles west of Walong.

USUAL TACTICS
Communist reports of self-defense action invariably are used to announce a new Chinese offensive.

Another broadcast said China had launched "the strongest protest" with India against alleged massing of troops near the Tibet border and in the Chusai airport area in Ladakh, 600 miles west of Tawang. Indians were reported shelling Chinese positions in the "hostile area and that Indian planes 'violated' Chinese territory."

90-Ton Vessel Skims On Skis 72 Miles Hour

OYSTER BAY, N.Y. (UPI) — A 90-ton ship skidded through the waters of Long Island Sound Friday, rose up out of its own wake and skimmed along on skis faster than any ocean going vessel before.

The ship skidded along at more than 60 knots, about 72 miles an hour, with its keel approximately five feet above the level water line.

Three times the ship covered the five-mile measured distance course. It was a test to prove it could to what its manufacturer said it would do.

The ship is the Maritime Administration's HS hydrofoil ship Denison. It is built by Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corp. in conjunction with the Maritime Administration.

The foils of the Denison provide lift as it travels through the water. As the ship's speed is increased, the lift is increased until at about 25 knots, the hull of the vessel clears the water and the ship flashes over the surface like it was on water skis.

With Friday's measured course demonstrations behind, the Denison now goes into the Atlantic Ocean for heavy weather tests.

U.S. Contracts Are Signed For 'Super Rocket'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Signing of contracts for America's new space workhorse, the long-awaited super rocket Titan III, was announced Friday by Air Force Secretary Eugene M. Zuckert.

said the Chinese, who had been reported massing troops for weeks near the Walong area where India, Burma and China come together, attacked in "more than two places" north and west of Walong. It appeared to be the biggest attack since the offensive of Oct. 20-24, he said. Walong is the administrative center of the North East Frontier Agency's Lohit division and is about 20 miles from the Burmese border.

The Lohit River Valley forms a relatively easy entry point into Assam and the Digboi oil fields 70 to 80 miles to the southwest. The Walong defense line stands astride the valley and the town is on an ancient invasion route into eastern India.

Friday's massive Chinese attack appeared to be in retaliation against an Indian Drive Wednesday which captured a Chinese hill position in the mountains northwest of Walong. A spokesman said the Indians "were able to occupy the slopes of the Chinese position despite heavy enemy fire."

Announcement of the Chinese attack accompanied Communist innocent until proven guilty and radio reports that the October of the prosecution must prove its entire case beyond all reasonable doubt.

Soviet Strategy Shifted

Based On Careful Estimate Of 14 Red Army Senior Officers, It Considers U.S. Missile Lead

A major shift in Soviet strategy is in the making. Based on the careful "estimate of the situation" prepared by 14 Red Army senior officers, it takes into account the widening lead held by the United States in intercontinental ballistic missiles and the tensions among the NATO powers.

several important facts.

1. By the end of this year, the U.S. will have some 300 ICBMs, many of them second and third generation types. The Soviet Union will have, at best, 20 to 40 ICBMs, most of them falling into the first generation or obsolescent category.

2. The Soviets will have more than 700 intermediate range missiles, against an estimated 300

U.S. IRBMs. Comrade Khrushchev has been told by his generals that if he pushes the button for nuclear war, the United States can demolish the Soviet Union at a relatively small cost to itself in the destruction of industrial and military capability.

3. In order to buy time — a decade is the minimum required — the Soviet Union must halt U.S. policy makers by soft talk and seeming "retreats." Khrushchev is willing to pay almost any price to prevent a hardening of American opinion. What worried the Kremlin most during the brief Cuban crisis was the readiness of the American people to go for beyond temporary toughness — in fact, to risk war.

Until the Soviet Union so far surpasses U.S. nuclear missile might that it can "bury" us with one devastating strike, it must deploy its diplomatic, political, and military forces in a new manner. On the one hand, the Kremlin must encourage the belief held by many in Washington that Red China is the major threat — and that in the future, the Soviet Union and the United States may be compelled to join forces in the eradication of the "yellow peril." On the other hand, the nations of Western Europe must be convinced that they, rather than America, will be the targets of a nuclear assault.

No matter how much Western Europeans talk about the "aggression" of U.S. policy with deep concern, any move toward a "bilateral" "accommodation" which will leave them out on an anti-Soviet limb without the protection of America's nuclear might.

Reports from Europe indicate that Soviet diplomats have begun to soften up the NATO powers by asserting that such an accommodation is in the works. The United States will abandon the rest of the world in exchange for its own safety. President Kennedy's willingness to promise not to threaten the status quo in Cuba by an invasion is cited as an example of American selfishness. Hints that the U.S. is ready to shut down its nuclear bases in Turkey and Western Europe are offered as proof that the U.S. will not lift a finger to defend anything but its own soil.

Soviet numerical strength in IRBMs which are a danger to only Western Europe and the Mediterranean, is a self-evident threat. By judicious rattling of these intermediate missiles, the Kremlin now hopes to weaken the NATO alliance without causing Washington to jitter over a direct attack on the U.S. In the past, Khrushchev attempted to sever the NATO ties by cocking a fist at America.

If the Soviet Union is to achieve its goal of preponderance in ICBMs within the next 10 to 15 years, it must rely on massive aid from Great Britain, France, and West Germany. This aid must come in the form of highly increased trade in heavy and strategic goods. With the Soviet economy both industrially and agriculturally weak, Khrushchev seeks to put the modern and efficient West European plant to work for him. U.S. efforts to prevent the expansion of East-West trade have been half-hearted and of sufficient consequence to make a difference.

On the political front, Khrushchev hopes to replace the British Conservatives with a Labor government antagonistic to the U.S., to flatter and co-opt President de Gaulle into an even stronger suppression of French anti-Communism, and to weaken or overthrow the pro-Western Christian Democrats in Germany. The crypto-socialism of the Kennedy Administration and its eagerness to "negotiate" both play into the Kremlin's hands.

The abortive attempt to make Cuba a forward missile base has convinced Khrushchev that it may be dangerous to confront the United States directly. His generals told him so. Now the Kremlin's new strategy is founded on the belief that the road to Washington lies through Bonn, Paris, and London.

How Do You Stand, Sir?

By BARRY GOLDWATER
U. S. Senator From Arizona

Speaking in a single voice, the nation's news media over the past few weeks have carried on a sustained attack on the New Frontier's "single-voice" concept of handling the news.

The controversy is perhaps the most important that has got itself into because of an excessive preoccupation with the advantages of executive power and control. This one grew out of the Cuban crisis and the difficulty newsmen encountered trying to get the most ordinary type of news out of the Department of Defense.

It began almost as soon as the tense situation between the United States and the Soviet Union eased after the Kennedy-Khrushchev agreement. And in presenting the administration's defense, Pentagon news boss Arthur Sylvester made the matter infinitely worse than it had been.

It should be remembered that Sylvester, Assistant Secretary of Defense, was the civilian official through whom the government channeled all of its news to the public of what our ships and planes were doing to enforce the American blockade of arms shipments to Cuba. As anyone who watched the performance on his television set will remember, many vital and some quite ordinary questions went unanswered for no apparent reason.

During this period, of course, the traditional facilities for gathering news at the Pentagon were closed, so the newsmen — and through them the public — were left entirely under the control of Mr. Sylvester and his Defense Department assistants.

But to get back to Mr. Sylvester's excuse for the elaborate control mechanism. He says the situation was "unique" and adds this astounding observation:

"I can't think of a comparable situation, but in the kind of world we live in, the generation of news by the government becomes one weapon in a strained situation. The results, in my opinion, justify the methods we used."

Since Mr. Sylvester offered his opinion of course, newsmen representing newspapers, radio, television and editorial groups from all over the nation have taken a strong dissent. But, in my opinion, none of them did it quite so well as the Washington Evening Star in a lead editorial.

This is what the Star had to say: "Mr. Sylvester is to be commended for his frankness, at least. But he has let an ugly cat out of the bag..."

"Weigh those words. Their meaning is truly sinister. In an administration that is becoming quite notable in its efforts toward achieving managed control of the news, Mr. Sylvester may have overlooked one likely result of the methods we used." This result is that Mr. Sylvester and his superiors, from this time on, are suspect. They have, in our opinion, recklessly and thoughtlessly forfeited a confidence that in this country has been the rule rather than the exception. What they say from now on, as arbitrarily established sources of public information, may be the truth. But that truth will be accepted with a grain of salt.

"The kind of world we live in" seems now to be a world in which the truth given the American people of what has happened is that part of the truth selected by officialdom to piece together a desirable image. That image may be a distortion, the inevitable result of an attempt to use the press and its news as instruments of national policy.

"One may hope that having tested the fruits of a use of power more readily identified with the Soviet Union, with Hitler, Mussolini and a long string of new lesser dictators than with our own country, those in high places will now realize that this fruit is poison and discard it before an antidote becomes necessary."

I suggest that no matter what the circumstances or what kind of world we live in, the end never justifies the means if it is achieved through the suppression of freedom and the people's right to know the truth.

How do you stand, sir?

Two Bible Cases

High Court To Hear Appeals On School Prayer Decisions

Two new cases, concerning school prayer and Bible reading, which may enlighten the public about the constitutional place of religion in public schools, await Supreme Court action.

Decisions on the two cases, one from Maryland and one from Pennsylvania, are anxiously awaited by friends and foes of the high court's opinion on the New York Regents' prayer.

That majority opinion, handed down June 25, said an official prayer, used in New York State public schools, was unconstitutional — because it had been written by the State Board of Regents.

Justice Hugo L. Black wrote: "In this country it is no part of the business of government to compose official prayers for any group of the American people to recite as part of a religious program carried on by the government."

Justice Black, in determining unconstitutionality, said the First Amendment would be violated, since it provided that Congress "shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion."

The Fourteenth Amendment guarantees that citizen's rights provided by Congress will also be guaranteed by the states.

The Fourteenth Amendment guarantees any citizen that a state cannot abridge any rights provided by the Constitution. For example, before the Fourteenth Amendment was passed, some states had state churches. This became unconstitutional after the amendment was passed.

The decision last June left implications hanging. Justice William O. Douglas, in his concurring opinion, stated that in view of this case, he wondered about the constitutionality of the prayers recited each day that Congress meets, or that the Supreme Court meets, or the existence of chaplains for the House and Senate — "a public official, on the public payroll, performing a religious exercise in a governmental institution."

Whether all these questions surrounding the issue will be answered by the forth coming opinions is doubtful. Justice Black's opinion was narrow — dealing strictly with a prayer written by state officials.

However, the opinions will likely clarify some of the obvious confusion surrounding prayer in public schools.

In the Maryland case, a mother and her son, a Baltimore public school student, ask that the state be forced to abandon its program of collective reading of the Lord's Prayer or one chapter of the Holy Bible each day, without comment.

Their plea had been rejected by a lower court and the state Court of Appeals. Because of the complaints of mother and son — both of whom say they are atheists — the state legislature amended the law November 17, 1960, to permit any child to be excused from the religious exercise, by written request of a parent.

But, mother and son contend the child suffered "loss of caste with his fellows... (he was) regarded with aversion and was subject to reproach and insult" — because he left his classroom during religious exercise.

The mother and son have asked the Supreme Court to determine whether the statute violates their constitutional rights.

In the second case, from Pennsylvania, the Unitarian family of two public school children from Germantown, argue that the reading of ten verses of the Holy Bible followed by recitation of the Lord's Prayer, is unconstitutional.

The state statute requiring this religious exercise was also amended to allow children excuse by written parental request. However, unlike Maryland, a three-judge Federal District Court ruled that the statute was unconstitutional.

More recently a third case — from Dade County, Florida — has come before the Court. But the Justices have not yet said they will hear it.

This appeal, brought by an agnostic, a Jew and a Unitarian, calls for the public schools to end reading of the Lord's Prayer and other religious prayers; sectarian baroque prayers; religious census to determine students' religious affiliations; and the use of religious symbols in art work.

School Brain-Twisting

Call it brain-washing or brain-twisting, or what you will, questions set up for schools by Science Research Associates and other similar organizations in a so-called youth inventory are designed to break down morals and principles of the students, in the view of Congressman John Ashbrook.

Under the heading "Brain-Pickering in School—A Study of Psychiatric Testing" many disturbing facts concerning questions asked of school children are disclosed. These questions clearly show that their purpose is to destroy faith in what is considered morally right, and to stir doubts in the minds of the students as to the validity of everything they have been taught is right.

Numerous so-called testing services seem to have as their purpose the destruction of principles and the old standards of values.

Compared to some of the questions asked of students, at a time when their minds are easily swayed, the old gag question, "Have you stopped beating your wife?" sounds as innocent as a lamb.

Many tests call for difficult or impossible answers, often pitting loyalties of religion, home, parents and patriotism against each other, as if they were opposed to each other, instead of going along naturally together.

Take the following excerpts from one "moral value inventory" exam: "Which is worse: 1. Spitting on the Bible; 2. spitting on the American flag?"

"Which is more important: 1. Taking the oath of allegiance to the United States; 2. joining a church?"

"Which is worse: 1. Denying the existence of God; 2. laughing while the Star-Spangled Banner is being played?"

"Which of the following men contributed more to the progress of mankind: 1. St. Paul (in the Bible); 2. Abraham Lincoln?"

On their faces, these questions appear to be of atheistic origin and clearly designed to disturb the students. Not one of these questions is one that needs to be answered, since they are not opposed.

Calling for yes or no answers, here are some of the questions, designed to arouse antagonism, doubt and distrust:

"I feel there is a barrier between me and my parents."

"My parents play favorites."

"I'm ashamed of my father's job."

"I'm ashamed of my parents

dress and manners."

"My parents avoid discussing sex with me."

"I wonder if I am normal in my sexual development."

"I want to know about venereal disease."

"I need an acceptable vocabulary to discuss sex."

"I think about sex a good deal of the time."

"How far should high school students go in love relations?"

"I am confused in my religious beliefs."

"I am bothered by thoughts of heaven and hell."

"Is there a conflict between the Bible and my school subjects?"

"I'm losing faith in religion."

"Is it wrong to deny the existence of God?"

Plainly, these questions are not designed merely to test the thinking of the students but to start them to thinking that whatever they believe is right probably is wrong. If there is any good in the questions themselves, their suggestions that deviations are desirable cause far more harm than they could possibly do good. That is their objective—breaking down faith.

Congressman Ashbrook said:

"It is my contention that non-academic tests of this type should be given only with parental consent. At the present time they are given without any prior notice to the parents."

"A school would be in serious trouble if it would undress young students for examination or inoculate them with some serum without parental permission. Yet virtually the same thing is done through brain-pickering tests which literally undress young people and interfere in private areas which would be better left alone."

Counseling of this type is largely sponsored by the federal government and is a part of its general brain-washing plan for the youth of the nation, as well as adults. It has been through the National Defense Education Act of 1958 that guidance and counseling of this type has become the vogue.

Most of the questions given children in grades four through seven are calculated to accentuate differences between children and parents and to destroy the children's faith in the security offered by their parents.

Is this the type of counseling we want our children to receive? If not, we should let our congressman know we object.

Court Narcotics Ruling

Occasionally, the United States supreme court comes up with a ruling that seems sensible. This might be generally true except for its deplorable record in integration and communist activity cases, in the former of which it forgets court decorum and sometimes rules without testimony and in the latter of which it has shown surprising support of those engaged in Red activities.

A recent case in which the court seems to have acted wisely is that in which it refused to reconsider its decision that a California law requiring imprisonment of narcotics addicts as criminals inflicts "cruel and unusual punishment."

Although some authorities present figures intended to show that narcotics sales increase in proportion to the severity of the laws and contend the incentive for drug addiction would be removed if sales were made legal, most people are strongly in favor of stringent laws against those who peddle narcotics.

Imprisonment of a victim of the narcotics habit, merely because he is a victim, if he violates no other law, would appear to be "strange and unusual punishment."

In their desperation, many narcotics victims violate other laws and for that they still can be punished. If they can go through this ordeal and still violate no law, they deserve treatment rather than punishment.

The Liberty Bell was cast at Thomas Lester's foundry at Whitechapel, London. It arrived in Philadelphia safely but cracked when it was tried out for sound.

Campaign buttons go back at least to the reign of Alexander the Great in the 4th Century B. C. The Macedonian ruler sent silver buttons to constituents.

To survive in Arctic wastes, polar bears must constantly hunt for food. Therefore, when an Eskimo sees a bear, he knows that seals and fish are also near.

Recent radio telescopic observations indicate that Venus's surface temperature may be as high as 575 degrees.

American sheep were first imported to the Aleutians in 1853, 14 years before Russia sold them to the United States as part of Alaska.

Drained and irrigated sections of France's Camargue region produce almost all the rice consumed in that country.

I receive many letters from people who list the shortcomings of their doctor. One doesn't make night calls. Another never smiles and is abrupt. A third charges too much. Another doesn't seem sympathetic. And at the bottom of the list, there is the doctor who is all right in every respect except that his magazines are months old.

Socialized or state medicine is well on its way, say these annoyed patients. Occasionally, I reprint these shortcomings of physicians, and shortcomings of their patients, because I think both doctor and patient should know what is going on in the mind of the other. Only in that way will there be a better doctor-patient relationship.

It is with pleasure, therefore, that I reprint a letter today from a patient who has a "wonderful doctor."

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Every once in a while you hear of a patient who is dissatisfied with the way his physician treats him.

I really feel sorry for such people. Perhaps they aren't satisfied because they expect too much too soon, or because there's a conflict of personality between patient and doctor. Sometimes because the doctor isn't so interested in the patient as a person.

I am so thankful that I have a doctor who is so understanding that he can put up with anything. I wish you I had my first and only baby at the age of 17. I was very frightened at the thought of delivery.

My hard labor started early in the evening about 7:00 P.M. Dr. C. was at my bedside at 7:30 and except for a bite of dinner, never left my bed until 5:40 A.M. when my baby was born. He would pat me on the head and tell me reassuring things. In his office, which is in the forefront of his home, his wife is his nurse and receptionist. She's a very sweet and intelligent woman.

My doctor had a serious operation several years ago, so he limits his practice to about one-half of what he used to have. So, when you go to him professionally, he explains everything in detail, draws diagrams, and when he is through asks, "Do you understand what I mean?" If you still look puzzled he starts all over again.

During the first few months of my son's life, I was very unsure of myself. It he ever got a little fever I would call my doctor at 1:00 or 2:00 A.M. He was always patient and understanding, and never seemed to mind.

Dr. Steincrohn, I could go on for pages and pages on how much I love and respect my doctor and how fortunate I have been to have had him see me through some hard times like I've had in the past five years. I'm only writing because I know some one like yourself can appreciate such a good person as my doctor. Thank you very much. — Mrs. P.

Comment: Doctors are only human beings, with the strengths and failings we generate in our daily contacts with our patients. Mrs. P.'s doctor is but one example of God's many masterpieces:

a doctor with good head and good heart!

Dear Dr. Steincrohn I have a pet peeve against my doctor because he is a fanatic about old age homes or nursing homes. He has nagged me within a half inch of my life to go into one. I love the Lord's fresh air and the thought of being shut in for life is horrible.

A doctor can usually help if one goes to him early enough. A good doctor is actually one's best friend, even if we long for the days when they didn't seem so heartless. — Mrs. W.

Comment: See what I mean? Dr. Steincrohn's leaflet, "Maybe Your Heart Trouble's Imaginary," will be mailed to you on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 10 cents in coin for handling. Address your request to Dr. Steincrohn, in care of this newspaper.

SHADE OF DIFFERENCE — Shortly before leaving for the United Nations where he will serve as special U.S. representative, Sen. Albert Gore of Tennessee, was warned that he would be assigned to a U.N. committee on which one of his colleagues would be Soviet Russia's No. 2 delegate. Gore was told the Russian, a former professor of law, is mild-mannered and forever smiling and that he should not let down his guard. "He is one of the toughest debaters around," the senator was advised. Gore said he had just learned an object lesson in the Senate and thought he could take on the Russian. He explained: "A news photographer photographed Sen. Kerr (Sen. Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma) and me outside the Senate chamber as we paused during a heated tax debate, and I sent my colleague the print I had received. Unknown to me at the time, the camera had caught us as we stood in front of a portrait of George Washington. Later my attention was called to the fact that, in this unusual portrait, the first President appeared both happy and unhappy, depending upon which side of his mouth was viewed. So in sending along the picture, I wrote good-naturedly, 'Dear Bob, George seems to be gloowering at you and smiling at me.' Never to be topped, Sen. Kerr replied immediately. 'Dear Albert, thank you for the photograph. I note you said, 'George seems to be gloowering at you and smiling at me.' Albert, can you not tell the difference between 'smiling' and 'laughing.' Affectionately and sincerely, Bob'."

Haiti Orders Deportation For Bishop

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Haiti's government Friday ordered deportation of Bishop Paul Robert and cited as one reason his campaign against voodoo in Haiti. Three other French-born Roman Catholic clergymen also were ordered deported.

Reports from the Haitian capital, Port au Prince, indicated President Francois Duvalier was reopening his long-standing feud with the Church. Duvalier is a doctor of ethnology and looks on folk religions with tolerance and more than average interest.

Mgr. Robert and the three priests, identified only as Robin, George Martin and Salus, are expected to leave Port au Prince by commercial airliner Saturday for New York via Santo Domingo. Bishop Robert will go on to Rome to report to the Vatican.

Mgr. Robert, in Haiti for 30 years, is the third prominent Roman Catholic clergyman ordered deported by Duvalier's government. Port au Prince Archbishop Francois Porier was deported Nov. 24, 1960, and his successor, Bishop Remy Augustin, was deported the following January. Six French-born priests also were deported in that period.

The government ordered Bishop Robert from his diocese, Goaves, in February 1961 after demonstrators looted the Bishop's warehouse, apparently with government acquiescence. Duvalier said then that the order was necessary to preserve public order.

Since then, Bishop Robert, 60, has been lodged in a retreat home for aged priests while the government sought unsuccessfully to have the Vatican recall him. The Haitian Foreign office, called in the diplomatic corps in Port au Prince to announce the deportation order and give the government's reasons.

The reasons dated back to 1941 when Bishop Robert was among leaders of a short-lived drive on the practice of voodooism, a primitive religion that originated in Africa and now is found chiefly in Haiti and some other Caribbean areas. In practice, voodooism consists largely of sorcery and in some rites has included human sacrifice and cannibalism.

2 Bandits Die In Gun Fight

NEW YORK (UPI)—Three bandits walked into a police trap during a payroll robbery that would have netted 34 cents Friday and tried to fight their way out with a sawed off shotgun and pistols. A raging gunbattle left two bandits dead and three persons wounded along city streets.

The third bandit, a city detective and an innocent bystander were shot during the gun fight on Manhattan's lower West Side.

There were 10 detectives hidden in a truck when the gunmen grabbed a bag attached to the wrist of an armed messenger, breaking an invisible screen that set off an alarm inside the bag and releasing a bomb of yellow smoke.

The bag contained $54,503.91 in payroll checks and company receipts. There was 34 cents in cash in a little blue envelope. The bandits could not have cashed any of the checks.

The bystander, Thomas Leahy, 59, was treated for a head wound. A wild bullet creased his scalp.

Detective Jeremiah Howard, 27, a policeman with seven bravery citations, was shot in the stomach. Police Commissioner Michael J. Murphy said he had only a "fighting chance" to live.

Killed were Kenneth Cavanagh, 33, and Albert Taylor, 48. The third bandit, Patrick John Huston, 35, was shot three times in the chest and stomach. He was reported in critical condition.

Police, acting on a tip, hid themselves in a truck. As the three gunmen came out of the George Martin and Salus, are expected to leave Port au Prince by commercial airliner Saturday for New York via Santo Domingo. Bishop Robert will go on to Rome to report to the Vatican.

Mgr. Robert, in Haiti for 30 years, is the third prominent Roman Catholic clergyman ordered deported by Duvalier's government. Port au Prince Archbishop Francois Porier was deported Nov. 24, 1960, and his successor, Bishop Remy Augustin, was deported the following January. Six French-born priests also were deported in that period.

The government ordered Bishop Robert from his diocese, Goaves, in February 1961 after demonstrators looted the Bishop's warehouse, apparently with government acquiescence. Duvalier said then that the order was necessary to preserve public order.

Since then, Bishop Robert, 60, has been lodged in a retreat home for aged priests while the government sought unsuccessfully to have the Vatican recall him. The Haitian Foreign office, called in the diplomatic corps in Port au Prince to announce the deportation order and give the government's reasons.

The reasons dated back to 1941 when Bishop Robert was among leaders of a short-lived drive on the practice of voodooism, a primitive religion that originated in Africa and now is found chiefly in Haiti and some other Caribbean areas. In practice, voodooism consists largely of sorcery and in some rites has included human sacrifice and cannibalism.

Woman, 47, Is Found Beaten, Slashed

JEFFERSONVILLE, Ind. (UPI)—A woman was found beaten and slashed, her clothing ripped to shreds, Friday near the spots where bodies of three slain Louisville women were found in the last six months.

State and county police intensively questioned the victim, Katie Logsdon, 47, in the hope she could lead them to the slayer or slayers believed to be preying on bar habits in a manner sometimes reminiscent of Jack the Ripper.

"We are trying to establish a connection between this beating and the other cases," Indiana state police Lt. Byron Brannan said. "We are not sure there is a link."

Miss Logsdon told police that a strange man picked her up in a bar in Louisville's Haymarket area early Friday, drove her across the Ohio River to rural Clark County, Indiana, on a pretext that he wanted to see some children, then parked at a lonely intersection and tried to attack her.

She said she fought him off, remembered the man trying to choke her with the sleeve of her dress, but did not remember how she got out of the car and into the ditch where she was found by a state highway employee. The workers notified Clarksville town Marshal Woodrow W. Gilbert.

The victim was treated at Clark County Hospital here and then released to police who held her for questioning in the county jail. Police said a hospital report indicated she had not been sexually assaulted.

Brannan said Miss Logsdon was unable to identify a photograph of a mystery man as her assailant and there was "every indication he was not the man."

Police would not say whether the picture shown her was that of a suspect in one or more of the slayings that had alarmed farm families in this southern Indiana community and caused them to seek beefed-up police patrols.

The alarm built up last week after the mutilated body of Anita Barmore, 21-year-old Louisville bar maid, was found — partially clad — near the driveway of a ditch where Miss Logsdon, unmarried Nov. 8. She had been strangled, police said, and from a drinking session that started at 10 a.m. Thursday, was the body of Julia Dawson, 22, found.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

LOLLIPOP REWARDS

The lollipop giveaway is a well established medical procedure among physicians who treat children. It is used to reward the Little Leaguer for being brave during the examination, injection, or anything else that might hurt him.

It works like a charm in the majority of instances. Tears disappear immediately, signs of agony or defiance give way to smiles, and the atmosphere changes from tenseness to calmness. Other youngsters strike and look forward to the reward. Tears come only when the physician is out of lollipops temporarily and offers cookies instead.

Many physicians object to the lollipop giveaway as being inconsistent with good medical care. Candy is given as a reward in early life but the medical profession condemns it later because it encourages dental decay.

In addition, candy is a food and when used frequently as a bribe, might encourage the development of overweight. Dr. Morton B. Glenn of New York City stresses this point. He firmly believes that many obese adults were obese children and the treatment of the condition, including the establishment of good eating habits, should begin early in life.

Is the lollipop necessary? Dr. Bernard A. Yablin of Rochester, N.Y., put the question to a scientific test and submitted the results to the New England Journal of Medicine. He gave lollipops to 130 children in his office to distract their attention following painful procedures. A followup study for three to 15 months showed that none of these youngsters acquired unusual feeding habits.

He decided to omit giving suckers to 15 children and to note the results. Nothing happened except that some yelled a little longer. But the response to the physician on subsequent visits was no different.

CIRCULATION STUDIES

D. J. writes: What tests are done to determine disturbances of the circulatory system?

REPLY

The circulation of an extremity is tested by feeling the skin to see if it is warm or cold; by taking the pulse to determine if it is strong, weak, or absent; and looking to see whether the skin turns light or dark when the arm or leg hangs down. From this point on, there are numerous procedures, such as the osmometer, measurements of skin temperature and circulation time, studies dealing with spasm, and the use of X-rays to study the patency of the blood vessels.

LEPROSY IN THE BIBLE

L. J. writes: In the new English revision of the Bible, I read that the revisers are changing the word leprosy to psoriasis. Are these two diseases the same?

REPLY

No. They are as different as ham and cheese. The skin lesions also are dissimilar but many authorities believe the people of Biblical times thought victims of psoriasis and other skin disorders had leprosy.

CHEESY CYSTS

I.S. writes: What should be one's attitude toward a sebaceous cyst?

REPLY

Cheerful. These cysts contain a cheesy material and are more unsightly than serious. They do not become malignant and should be removed only when they are bothersome or represent a cosmetic defect.

FACIAL PANGS

E. F. writes: Could a 4-year-old child suffer from tic douloureux? The child gets sudden and momentary seizures of pain near his mouth.

REPLY

Yes, altho trigeminal neuralgia is unusual at this age. This child's teeth, gums, and ears should be examined.

Agents Arrest 13 In Lottery In Mississippi

NATCHEZ, MISS. (Special) — Thirteen persons, including a white man and 12 Negroes, were arrested here Friday and charged with engaging in a lottery operation.

Lottery equipment and records were seized, according to agents of the intelligence division of the U. S. Internal Revenue Service. Clifford L. Williams, 46, was charged with conducting the lottery.

In addition to the equipment, agents seized an automobile that they claimed Williams used in the operation, plus $2,800. J. L. Enoch, Jackson district director of this intelligence division, said the raid was conducted to enforce the wagering tax laws which require the purchase of a $50 special tax stamp by persons engaged in lottery.

Arraignment was due before a U. S. Commissioner at Vicksburg, Miss.

THIS WAS THE CIVIL WAR

By MERTON T. AKERS

United Press International President Jefferson Davis of the C.S.A., as well as President Lincoln, was forced to reorganize his military setup in November 1862.

Two weeks after Lincoln fired Maj. Gen. George B. McClellan as commander of the Army of the Potomac, George W. Randolph, grandson of Thomas Jefferson, resigned as secretary of war in Davis' cabinet. He was tired of being a "clerk."

Randolph was Davis' third secretary of war in the almost two-year-old Confederacy. The first, Leroy Pope Walker of Alabama, lasted eight months. His successor, Judah P. Benjamin, came under fire in six months and was named secretary of state. Randolph's term was about eight months.

The outgoing war secretary had spent six years in the U.S. Navy and was a brigadier general in the Confederate Army when he became secretary of war. In military experience, he exceeded both his predecessors and successors.

Yet during his time in office, he often learned first of important military decisions from the newspapers. For Davis was being his own secretary of war.

In the fall of '62, sensing the peril of Vicksburg and Port Hudson, Miss., the only Confederate strongholds left on the Mississippi River, Randolph asserted his authority and ordered 10,000 troops across the river to reinforce the scattered Rebel armies defending the area. This he did without clearing it with Davis.

Davis immediately rescinded the order. Randolph replied with his resignation. Davis suggested an interview. Randolph declined. Davis named Maj. Gen. Gustavus Smith, a Kentuckian and a former New York City street commissioner, to the post for three days.

Then he reached into Sabot Hill, a plantation mansion on the James River, and took James A. Seddon from his books and made him secretary of war on Nov. 21, 1862.

Seddon was a story-book Confederate — plantation master, reader, scholar, linguist, philosopher, firm state's rights man and multifaceted. He had been a U.S. congressman but illness sent him back to his library at Sabot Hill well before the war started.

John B. Jones, diary-keeping war department clerk, in his usual morbid words, described Seddon as "gaunt and emaciated, with long straggling hair, mingled gray and black. He looks like a dead man galvanized into muscular animation. His eyes are shrunken and his features have the hue of a man who has been in his grave a full month."

Seddon soon shut himself off from most visitors, requiring those who did get in to see him to write their names and business on a school slate. This method of doing business soon involved him in trouble in the Richmond bureaucracy but he never crossed Davis. He lasted in office until the final days of the war, handling paper work but taking little part in military decisions. Davis never relinquished the last word in military affairs.

The new commander of the Army of the Potomac, Maj. Gen. Ambrose E. Burnside, knew when he succeeded McClellan that he was expected to move against the Richmond and Gen. Robert E. Lee's Army of Northern Virginia, and to move immediately.

But first he reorganized the Army of the Potomac into three Grand Divisions, a new setup for the Union army. Each Grand Division consisted of two army corps with a senior major general-time to move his army to the heights above Fredericksburg and the right Grand Division was commanded by Maj. Gen. Edwin V. Sumner, a 65-year-old veteran of the Mexican and Indian wars. This would be his last campaign. He had the II and the IX corps.

The Center Grand Division was under Maj. Gen. Joseph Hooker, 38, and also a Mexican War veteran. He had the III and V corps.

The Left Grand Division was commanded by Maj. Gen. William B. Franklin, 39, Mexican War veteran, engineer and explorer. He had the I and the VI corps. Each Grand Division included a cavalry division.

All the Grand Division commanders except Sumner were West Pointers and had led troops since the start of the war.

Burnside's plan was to strike War of the Rebellion by act of at Richmond — a geographical Congress, it had several other objectives, instead of the Confederates before all sides agreed to reorganize army — by way of Fredericksburg to it as the Civil War. The objective, one of the three other names included Southern classic invasion routes toward the War for Independence, the South-southern capital.

Lincoln approved the plan with the Revolution and the Confederates, perhaps only because of the war.

It promised action instead of McClellan's indecision.

All told, Burnside had about 120,000 troops and 374 guns. When he took over the Army of the Potomac, it lay between the two halves of General Lee's Confederate army, which also had been reorganized into the first corps under Lt. Gen. James Longstreet and the second Corps under Lt. Gen. Thomas J. (Stonewall) Jackson.

The two Confederate corps — 80,000 men with 306 guns — were about 40 airline miles apart with the Army of the Potomac sitting in the center.

Strategically Burnside was in a good spot. He could move either way against the halves of the Confederate army but instead he set his army into motion toward Fredericksburg, away from the enemy.

The first of his troops — Sumner's Grand Division — reached Falmouth, Va., opposite Fredericksburg on Nov. 17, 1862. The Army of the Potomac was in a position to strike except for one big reason — its pontoon bridges had not arrived from Harper's Ferry where they had been used earlier by McClellan.

The weather, which had been uncommonly good, turned bad. Temperatures fell and then snow, cold came first rain, then snow. On Nov. 25 the bridging arrived at Aquia Creek on the Potomac.

Then began the task of moving the heavy pontoons over 15 miles of muddy roads to the Rappahannock River between Falmouth and Fredericksburg.

The delay gave Lee plenty of time to move his army to the heights above Fredericksburg and to establish it in positions from which the Federal army could be raked by cannon fire if it crossed the river.

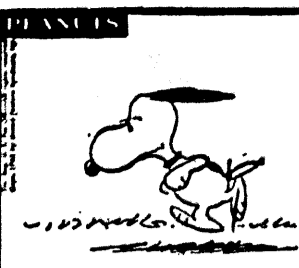

Gradually in the mud and snow of the Virginia winter the stage was set for the worst Union disaster of the war to date.

William Henry Gist, South Carolina governor when the secession movement got well under way in November, 1860, was a War veteran, engineer and explorer. He had killed one Samuel Fair in a duel over some remarks about a woman.

Although the armed conflict between the North and South had started in 1861, it was officially called "The War of the Rebellion" by act of at Richmond.

Before all sides agreed to reorganize army — by way of Fredericksburg to it as the Civil War. The objective, one of the three other names included Southern classic invasion routes toward the War for Independence, the South-southern capital.

Lincoln approved the plan with the Revolution and the Confederates, perhaps only because of the war.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The federal appeals court Friday knocked down a district court barrier to Justice Department inspection of voter registration records in three Mississippi counties.

The registrars involved are Preston P. Coleman of Lauderdale County, L. P. Campbell of Madison County and H. T. Ashford Jr. of Hinds County.

U.S. District Judge Harold Cox ruled in Jackson, Miss., in September that the registrars must make their records available for federal inspection.

But later he held up the order's execution, pending an appeal by the state.

RETURNS TO GERMANY

Adenauer Warns Of Soviet Moves

WASHINGTON (UPI)—West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer returned home Friday from two days of high-level talks here during which he told President Kennedy that Russia's defeat in Cuba may make Nikita Khrushchev more dangerous and unpredictable.

Adenauer departed from nearby Andrews Air Force Base Friday morning on a non-stop jet flight to Germany. Awaiting him at home was possibly the worst political crisis in the West German government since he took office 13 years ago.

The 86-year-old German leader has scheduled meetings in Bonn Saturday to deal with threats to topple his coalition government. Demands are being made for the resignation of Defense Minister Franz Josef Strauss for his part in actions against the news magazine, Der Spiegel.

Troubles at home were nowhere in evidence at Adenauer's departure, however, when Secretary of State Dean Rusk praised the 86-year-old leader as a man of great value to the United States and one "who belonged to all of us who cherish freedom."

Adenauer, obviously moved by Rusk's remarks, said he was sure the German and American peoples—the latter led by "such able men as the President and secretaries of state"—will together maintain world peace and freedom.

Members of Adenauer's party said the chancellor left with a higher degree of respect for Kennedy than he had before the talks. They said this was the result of Kennedy's handling of the Soviet missile threat in Cuba, and Kennedy's assurances that he is in no hurry to negotiate with Khrushchev on other cold war issues.

Adenauer, however, warned Kennedy it was still too early to know exactly how Khrushchev will react to his setback in Cuba. German officials said he pointed out that this was a dangerous unknown factor for the future.

Adenauer's visit to the United States was part of a tour that included stops in Washington, New York, and Los Angeles. He is expected to return to Germany on Sunday.

Pair Accused In Bombings

NEW YORK (UPI)—Manacled Bobby Randell Wilcoxson pleaded innocent to robbery-murder in Buffalo, N.Y., charges Friday as the FBI accused him and his partner of a series of "mad bombings" in face of similar charges, a U.S. attorney said, while Wilcoxson will be taken to Buffalo to face charges there.

The FBI in Washington said the 33-year-old, one-eyed Wilcoxson and Albert Nussbaum—partners in the robbery of the Brightwood branch of the Bank of Commerce in Washington on June 30, 1961. The $18,852 robbery took place while police were busy disarming a bomb found in a downtown building.

Among the bank holdups of which the pair are accused is the robbery of the Brightwood branch of the Bank of Commerce in Washington on June 30, 1961. The $18,852 robbery took place while police were busy disarming a bomb found in a downtown building.

The FBI said Nussbaum and Wilcoxson planned it this way and had set off three explosions in Washington earlier to set the stage. The three explosions did not harm anyone, agents said.

Wilcoxson was held without bail, facing a possible death sentence if convicted.

Wilcoxson was arrested in Baltimore last Saturday just six days after the machinegun slaying of a bank guard during a holdup of the Lafayette National Bank in Brooklyn last Dec. 15.

The FBI has charged the men with eight bank robberies in six cities in which $250,000 was stolen. In the Washington bombings, agents said that 13 days before the robbery of the Brightwood branch bank, a bomb was placed in a trashcan to see if it would go off and attract police. It did not.

The next day, June 16, a second trial date for March 4. The murder charge contained in bomb, also a test, was set off in the federal indictment here an outdoor telephone booth.

Neville Tops Ouachita; Regular Seasons End

By STUART HILL, World Sports Writer

Halfback Jimmy Howard scored twice Friday night and quarterback Don Sagel crossed the goal once to lead Neville's defending state AA champions over Ouachita, 21-6.

The game ended regular season play for both teams and Neville's season.

A 75-yard run down the sideline by end Billy Gerson who scooped up a Neville fumble on his own 25 with less than three minutes to go, upped the lead to 21-6. The loss left Ouachita's Lions with a winless season in 11 games.

Quarterback Carl Gilstrap's bucking the Tiger line, Lion runners were on occasion thrown for repeated losses and forced Ouachita to call on the services of senior kicking end Jack Trimble.

Trimble's boots took the Lions out of hot water several times during the night.

A light rain, which increased to a steady pour, then dissipated, hit the Tiger Stadium late in the third and sent parts of the fans scattering for cover.

Howard's long run was the highlight of the contest. The senior halfback put the score at 14-0 after taking in one of Trimble's punts — a 41-yarder — on the Tiger 24-yard line and picked his way through the defense by speeding up and slowing down and changing directions only twice.

Two tackles, John Segars and Richard Wilkerson, sparked the Tiger line what seemed like goal-line stands everywhere on the field and forced the Lions into the air.

Gilstrap's favorite target of the night was halfback Ronnie Walling, who had his eye on the ball most of the night.

Walling sparked the Lions' secondary with tremendous pass defense which appeared to catch down with the other defending backs.

In the first quarter following White's important recovery at the Ouachita 35-yard line, Gary Pappas, Kurt Guelzow, Don Johnson and Howard combined to take the ball to the two-yard line in eight plays. Pappas collected five yards; Johnson nine; Guelzow 10 and Sagel threw a nine yard pass to Howard during the drive.

By Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please don't pass over this problem as trivial. I need help.

My boy friend and I are both 17. The trouble centers around the telephone. Seymour calls me every afternoon after school. We talk about an hour. Sometimes I want to get off because I have other things to do or someone else wants the phone. But Seymour insists on staying on. When I ask him to please hang up he becomes annoyed and keeps right on talking.

The other evening I lost my temper when he refused to say goodbye. I shrieked, "If you have nothing to say why do you insist on tying up the line for hours?" He hung up on me. Five minutes later he called back and I hung up on him.

Seymour is a perfect gentleman in every other way. How can I solve this telephone problem? — BUSY SIGNAL

DEAR SIGNAL: Seymour has black cord fever, for which there is no known cure. If I were you I'd say, "Look, Seymour, from now on you've got a 15 minute telephone deadline. If you can't meet it, don't call." Put an alarm clock by the telephone and set it. When the bell goes off — you go, too.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I wish the husband of "Miserable" and all people who are afraid of former tuberculosis patients could realize that THEY are a greater menace to US than we are to them.

To begin with, no patient is ever released from a T. B. sanitarium until the disease has been arrested and there is no chance of passing it on.

Anyone who has ever had T. B.

knows the importance of periodic check-ups. His education along those lines is painfully complete. Yet when we are released we find ourselves surrounded by people who have never had a chest X-ray because they are certain "nothing is wrong with them."

Some of these people have active tuberculosis and don't know it. These careless and thoughtless individuals could re-infect U.S. So, Ann, maybe the former T.B. patient should run from them. — DENVER J. H.

DEAR DENVER J.H.: Right you are. And this provides me with an excellent opportunity to remind my readers to get a chest X-ray annually. I love you all and I don't want to lose any of you.

HINTS FROM Heloise

DEAR HELOISE: I read in your column that a reader used plastic screening to make a new cover for her laundry cart. Well, I used the same idea to make myself a new clothes pin bag!

I fashioned a new bag after my old one, sewing it on my sewing machine by using a heavy duty needle and ordinary weight thread. I even put a couple of rows of fancy stitching along the top to dress it up!

I also used some of the same plastic to make a "sock" or "little bag" for the end of my washing machine hose to filter the dirty water as it spins out! Again, I simply cut the desired amount of plastic screen needed (about 12 inches long and 6 inches wide) and sewed it on my sewing machine, leaving one end open in the "bag" of course. Then I clamped it on and presto, no more lint problems!

I can easily see when my little plastic bag is full and needs to be emptied! Then it's a simple matter to turn the "sock" inside out, remove the lint, turn it again and recap it on the hose. Here is another idea to be shared!

I found that an old dish drainer is wonderful for keeping my pie pans, cake pans, and various lids and platters handy!

Gloria Bowman

DEAR HELOISE

Have you ever tried using tooth paste on copper and stainless steel? Bless its invention! It sure cleans it.

Grandma

DEAR HELOISE

Did you know that nylon stockings were great to put those packages of footstuffs into before storing them away in the deep freeze?

Well, they are. I find that tubing made from nylon stockings will keep packages from sticking to one another, such as when we wrap them in other types of papers, foil and plastic.

The foot and top of the stocking may be cut off leaving a beautiful nylon tubing. Just slip your wrapped, frozen packages and boxes into this tube.

The stocking may be scalded if you think that is necessary. But I don't have the time.

S. S. S.

DEAR HELOISE:

Our answer to slippery shower soap, is to drop the bar of soap into the toe of a nylon hose, tie a knot to form a wrist loop in the top of the stocking and enjoy the bonus of a gentle scrubbing action from the nylon!

A different color soap for each family member is a suggestion.

G. WHITE

And don't knock this one either until you've tried it. It's absolutely terrific.

DEAR ABBY

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: We received an invitation to a wedding. It was addressed to "Mr. and Mrs. ..." and then our names. Is it safe to assume that our children are not invited? They are not babies. They are 9 and 11 and conduct themselves like a little lady and little gentleman. The people who sent it know we don't go anywhere without our children. The wedding is to be held in a fine hotel. We think attending adult social functions helps develop sense in children. We will abide by your decision.

MR. AND MRS. DEAR MR. AND MRS.: I agree, attending adult social functions does indeed develop "poise" in children — but unless they are specifically invited, it develops ulcers in the hostess. Leave the little lady and little gentleman at home.

DEAR ABBY: You were right about the honor system not working. And it won't work until the students themselves make it work. And I don't mean "talking" to the teacher. If they can put the screws on someone who dresses oddly, why can't they put the screws on someone who cheats? Young people should have integrity and I can see no better way of cultivating it than ostracizing those among their own peers who cheat. I'd like to know what the students think about this.

C. A. A. (Pastor)

DEAR ABBY: I am a volunteer Group Work leader. I have been a faithful reader of your column for many years. I used some of your letters to help discourage young people from going steady and now I have something for you! It's called The Ten Commandments for Teen-Agers. You are wel-

Christmas Stamp Issue On Sale At Post Office

Special "Christmas Stamps" are on sale at the Monroe Post Office. Postmaster Woodrow W. Hathorn said Friday.

Hathorn pointed out that the four-cent Christmas stamp — in holiday colors of green, red and white — is intended especially for use on greeting cards. First supply of the stamps was received at the post office this week, with other shipments expected within the next few days.

Meanwhile, Hathorn issued a "meanwhile" appeal for the holiday season. He reminded that gift parcels to overseas destinations should be mailed not later than Nov. 20. He also called attention to these other mailing deadlines: gift parcels for local and nearby areas by Dec. 12; greeting cards for distant states by Dec. 10 and greeting cards locally by Dec. 15.

"Patrons are being urged to separate their local and out-of-town Christmas cards into separate bundles to help speed the mail service on these," he pointed out.

U.S. Pledges Europe Nuclear Force Support

PARIS (AP)—The United States pledged its support Friday for an integrated European nuclear force within the framework of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to help with technical knowledge in with the American effort.

George W. Ball, undersecretary of state, told the closing session of the eighth annual NATO parliamentarians' conference that Washington would give serious consideration to a genuinely multilateral European ballistic missile force, fully coordinated with the other deterrent forces of NATO.

In this he was reiterating in a more positive form what McGeorge Bundy, President Kennedy's special assistant for national security affairs, recently told an Atlantic association meeting in Copenhagen, to the effect that the United States is willing to share its nuclear responsibility with a united European force.

The NATO parliamentarians' conference provided that the Euro-Atlantic nuclear force would be merged into the European force, clear know-how to a genuinely integrated European force.

One of these, introduced by Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., called for a conference of American, Canadian, Latin American and Western European governments sometime next year to map the economic development of Central and South America.

Ball said that while a European nuclear contribution, from a strictly military standpoint, is not urgently needed, the United States would understand if a unified Europe wished to play a larger role in nuclear defense.

This would be a blow to French conventional forces on the European front, as he put it, to "increase the spectrum of our military choices on the Continent." He said it was essential for such as West Germany and Italy, a more powerful and more unified Europe, acting as a partner of the United States within NATO, to provide a buildup of conventional forces in Europe.

Ball stressed the need for forces in Europe.
